Dear Parents:

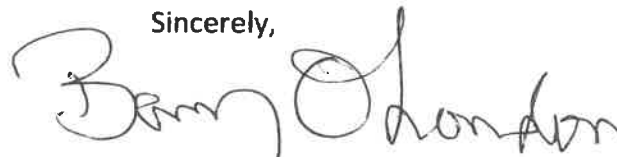

I want to thank all of you for your patience last week when the storm knocked the communities power out. We have become so reliant on the informational age that contacting everyone without power became much more problematic. Fortunately, this is a rare occasion and we should be back to the normal routine.

On another note, you received an invitation for an event next week, November 16, that I would like to offer an explanation for. The Student Wellness Committee, made up of middle school students, has been working with me on important issues and concerns surrounding nutrition, physical and mental wellness, and other topics that are important for life-long health. These students have been very insightful and productive with planning events and activities.

The program slated for November 16th, Supporting and Communicating with our Children, is organized for parents and the Student Wellness Committee to engage in small group activities that promote discussions with difficult topics. There will be Academy Award winning actors and actresses (students and staff), grade level specific conversations, and a spaghetti dinner to fuel your thoughts. We will be offering child care for those parents unable to make arrangements for children at home.

We hope you can join us for the 1 ½ hour event. Please send in your personal invitation or contact us here at school so we can plan accordingly.

Sincerely,

Barry O. London
